13. OTHER

* Regent Gonzales requested a performance review on larger at-risk contracts to address whether or not proper processes and procedures are being followed when vendors are awarded a contract.

Interim Senior Vice President Throneberry indicated that NMSU’s internal auditors can review the procurement process and specifically the construction management at risk. External consultants and internal auditors looked at the procurement process a few years ago and recommended that the construction management at risk be utilized as a delivery method for large construction projects.

* Regent Gonzales asked if NMSU participates in some of the national purchasing alliances that leverage assistance with other universities that are buying from specific national vendors.

Director Mike Abernethy responded that NMSU does participate in some cooperative purchasing through the Educational Institutional Cooperative through CES and also US Communities. Director Abernethy stated that if there are local firms in the Las Cruces area that can provide the needed business NMSU will give the local businesses the opportunity to submit their offer rather than using the CES contracts. The decision is based on a best buy analysis.

* Regent Gonzales noted that there are issues between cattle grazers and the forest service in the northern part of the state. He asked if NMDA could provide some assistance to help resolve the concern of too many cattle on allotments in Rio Arriba County. He indicated the forest service has issued some mandates in reducing the number of cattle on some of the allotments in the area. He asked if NMSU’s mission to be involved in economic development, cultural and traditional issues would have a role through NMDA to assist with this.

Ricardo Rel indicated the Range Improvement Task Force handles these types of issues through the Cooperative Extension Service.

Interim Director Bagwell said he would contact the coordinator of the Range Improvement Task Force and make sure he was aware of this situation and follow up.
